The Minnesota delegates are favorable's to Tilden.

The California and Nevada delegates are solid for Blaine.

The Democratic State Convention meets at Columbus, June 24th.

The Republican National Convention will assemble at Chicago to-morrow.

John Wolf, son of the Circuit Court Clerk of Scott County, has been sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for forgery on the Georgetown bank. Fifteen indictments for similar offenses are pending against him.

The New York Independent Republican delegation is in Chicago making war on Arthur and Blaine. They threaten to bolt it either of these distinguished gentlemen should not be nominated. They are for Senator Edwards.

Mr. CHARLES M. STEELE, the present business manager of the Cincinnati News Journal, denies the report that it is his intention to publish a two-cent morning daily. The story was put into circulation to affect the sale of the material and good will of the News Journal.

The Republican Convention at Chicago, to-morrow, will be composed of eight hundred and twenty delegates, and four hundred and eleven votes will be required to nominate. There will be about sixteen contests. The entire Virginia delegation, composed of twenty-four votes, will be opposed. The Republican delegation for Blaine and the Malone delegation for Arthur. The fate of both candidates is said to depend on the result of this contest.

THE MARSHALL FAMILY
And Other Famous People of a Little Kentucky Town.

Louisville Times.

A correspondent writing from the old town of Washington, in Mason County, says: In view of the interesting ceremonies in Washington City, in honor of Chief Justice John Marshall, I thought a letter from that place would be of interest to our relatives living and where his mother and father lie buried, might be of some interest to your readers. This is the oldest settlement in Northeastern Kentucky, and one time the center of a large and active group of agriculture.

Thomas Marshall, a brother of Chief Justice John Marshall, came here from Virginia in early life and raised a large family, and among them Col. Charles A. Marshall, now living in Louisville.

Another brother of the Col. Justice died in Woodford County—Dr. Louis Marshall. He died a few years since. The writer well remembers seeing him here many times on a visit to his relatives. He always seemed calm that was was about his head.

I have heard it told of the old gentleman, who was a great eater, that while he would be asking a blessing, standing at the foot of the table, as was his custom, and after the meal was over, he would then turn and there proceed to eat the servants for their neglect.

The old doctor was a great Presbyter, and used to sit on the rostrum directly on 'the pulpit when he came to church, whether he be seen or to hear tell of it.

This old gentleman, as I have said, lived in Woodford County, and taught a school at his place, called Buston-land. The celebrated orator, Thomas E. Pease, taught in this school. He died in 1851, and the parents of the Chief Justice came when they left Virginia for Kentucky, intending to make their future home with their son, Louis; but they soon removed there, the loss of their son, Thomas, named for his father and his favorite son. They died here at a very old age and now lie buried in the Marshall family burial ground, adjoining this village.

Another of the celebrated duelist, Alex. McClung, was a sister of the Chief Justice.

She had another son, John A. McClung, who was distinguished both at the bar and pulpit, for his great oratorical and eloquent powers. He divorced himself in Niagara Falls some years ago.

His wife was a sister of Albert S. Johnston, who commanded the Confederate army at Pittsburg Landing.

Old Dr. Johnson, the father of Albert, spent his last years in this place from Connecticut in early life.

General Wm. Nelson, who was killed by John C. Davis at the Gault House in Louisville, was a native of this place, and was buried here.

The father of Dr. Johnson, who was a physician, and old Dr. Johnston lived in the same house here at different times.

It was something that did not often occur during the war, that the two Generals, who were the heroes of the opposing armies, should have been natives of the same small town, and well known to each other.

Such was the case at the bloody battle of Shiloh, or Pittsburg Landing, where Johnston fought with the Confederate forces and fell mortally wounded, sealing a charge. It is a matter of history that Nelson's coming up to the opportune time at the head of Buell's army saved the day and the Federal army from a great disaster.

Thomas Marshall Kev, who lived in your city and was on McClellan's staff, went from here. His father was clerk of the court here for many years. John Kev was an older brother of Thomas. He was a soldier in the Civil War, but was dismissed from the army by President Lincoln on account of some indirect language concerning the freeing of the slaves. The writer was shown a short time since a copy of the order dismissing him.

DEATH OF A GYPSY QUEEN.

Lying in State in Camp with Flowers are Covering Her Coffin Lid.

New York, June 3.—On the half a quarter of a mile south of El Moro station, a camp fire of a gypsy band blazed brightly last evening. Around one of the fires a dozen swarthy men with red handkerchiefs at their throats, sat and talked. In the center of the group sat a woman, dressed in the garb of a gypsy, with a red shawl over her head. She was Elizabeth, the woman who had driven him up from Elizabethtown under cover of the darkness, and was open for a trade. The brass buttons of officer Sloan glittered by the fire light. A pack of dogs under the tent, and more wagons trailed by strangers who came along.

Inquiry being made for the chief gypsy, Uncle Walter Lovell, a stalwart man six feet in height, broad shouldered and with a large nose, stepped forward. "Yes," he said, in answer to a question, "it is true that the queen of the band is dead. She died a little before 10 o'clock yesterday."

While he was speaking the old man led the way to a tent where a woman sat by a candle. "There the old lady lies," he said, pointing to a coffin in the tent. The coffin lid was almost covered with flowers. A score of women sat around the ground, talking and crying together. "She was my wife," the chief of the band said. "She was born in a gypsy camp near Norfolk, England, more than a hundred years ago. Her name was Mary. She had a love for a man, and he left her. She was taken sick here in camp about a week ago, and she died. I am sure she was over a hundred. She was a gypsy life in this country—one in our band and one in another—and a third son in another. We were married old age, and died here."

We were married in England I don't know how many years since, and came to this country four years ago. We have camped in almost every country in Europe, and almost every state of the Union. Last winter we were in Virginia. We have three sons. Two are living, four to a gypsy life in this country—one in our band and one in another—and a third son in another. We were married old age, and died here."

There are about forty gypsies in the band. They have six tents and a dozen wagons. The dead woman was treated with the same consideration as a queen.

She was regarded as an infallible fortune teller, and she had accumulated a considerable property. When a gypsy dies the owner is buried by the dead woman, and the two wagons are loaded; otherwise, bad luck, it is believed, will follow the band. Queen Rosanna sold all the property that belonged to her shortly before her death, so that there were no sacrifices of horses and no price of wagons. It is expected that funeral services will be attended by many gypsies from bands encamped in other parts of New Jersey.

WORKING THEM OFF.

George Oliver Convicted of Murder in the First Degree—Johnson Sustained.

CINCINNATI, O., June 2.—The jury in the George Oliver murder case returned a verdict of guilty on the first degree yesterday morning. The jury retired at 1 P.M. Friday.

At an early hour yesterday morning they announced that they wished to report. When they had filed into the jury box, Judge Avery asked, "General, is the jury ready to agree on a verdict?"

"We have," responded Isaac Ackley, the foreman.

"Take the verdict," said the judge to the clerk. The clerk received the verdict from the foreman, and read: "We find you guilty of murder in the first degree."

Upon Major Blackburn's request the jury was permitted to each a juror, right or left, in response to the question: "Do you and Geo. Oliver guilty of murder in the first degree?" "I do," said the foreman.

Judge Avery thanked the jury for their service, and then adjourned the trial to the next day, when he would be confident about the trial that he would receive a verdict of an inferior degree of homicide or acquittal, and has borne himself with sang froid throughout the entire trial, when the full effect of the verdict dawned upon his mind, gave way completely, and he suppressed sobs amidst the courtroom.

As she slept, however, she awoke.

Benjamin Johnson, the surviving brother, is expected to be hanged September 12.

COMPTROLLER CANNON'S VIEWS.

The Financial Outlook Promising and the Banks in Good Condition.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The Comptroller of the Currency, upon being asked to day what he thought of the present financial situation, said he believed that it was improving. The country is in New York, where he has lost a large portion of their country deposits, but he thought that as soon as confidence should be restored money would flow again into normal channels, as it did after the panic of 1857.

"Some of the best and most conservative people in New York," he continued, "think that great progress has been made and that the country is on the way to recovery. If it should last, it will be a great improvement of the country. It would increase the confidence of the country, by more than 50 per cent, in the McPherson bill, or the bill introduced by Mr. McPherson, which is passed by Congress—and the McPherson bill seems to be the only one that is likely to be reached—there will be a contraction of the currency during the summer and early fall, and it is possible that more federal bonds will go out when it becomes necessary to move the crops."

NORTH POWDER, Ore., June 2.—William and James Cannon, brothers, were found yesterday under as many as five feet of dirt in their mining camp at Burger Flat, eight miles from the effects of a bite inflicted by a "copper head" snake Tuesday last.

PERSONALS.

Rev. Joseph C. Frank is in the city.

Dr. James Shackleton is better to-day. Colonel Robert Baldwin has just returned home.

Miss Laura Hannan is the guest of Mrs. C. M. Phister.

Col. W. S. Rand, of Vanceburg, is in the city to-day.

Col. John G. Hickman is visiting friends at Chicago.

Mrs. Rebecca Davis, of Cincinnati, is visiting Mrs. John P. Phister.

Mr. Geo. H. Owners and Children are visiting friends at Cincinnati.

Colonel L. S. Luttrell, we are pleased to hear, is considerably better.

Mrs. T. F. Rogers and children, of Mt. Sterling, are the guests of the family of Mr. James Smith.

Mrs. Nancy Jackson, of Louisville, is visiting her brother, Mr. O. D. Burgoyne, of the Fifth Ward.

Mrs. Gallagher and her daughter, Miss Jennie, of Johnson's Station, who have been visiting the family of Mr. Henry Hubbard, have returned home.

Miss Mollie Clark, of Indianapolis, and Miss Baker, daughter of Governor Baker, will arrive in Maysville in a few days and will be the guests of Mrs. James H. Rogers.

Another New Enterprise.

One by one Maysville adds to its growing list of manufactures and public enterprises. The Maysville Steam Laundry company have in position their boiler and engine and all the washing, starching and ironing machinery for laundrying by steam power. They have a handsome delivery wagon which will call regularly at private residences for family washing and will deliver same when done. Their machinery is of the latest and improved quality, and under the management of Mr. Kiff, will do most excellent work. Their bath rooms for hot and cold water baths, will be fitted up in excellent style. We bespeak for the new enterprise a liberal patronage. It certainly will be the means of dispensing with a great deal of annoyance and inconvenience to our housekeepers in the matter of family washing.

Sales of Land.

The following transfers of real estate have been recorded at the office of the County Clerk, since our last report:

Catherine Smith to G. E. Tabell, sixteen acres and three rods of land near Dover; cost $1,000.

School Trustees.

Mr. D. J. Keeg, the School Committee-one writes to the Bulletin: "I have not received from the Superintendent of Public Instruction the necessary blanks, to notify patrons of the election for school trustees. The election for one trustee should be held in every school district in the county on next Saturday from nine o'clock a. m., to five o'clock p. m. If the banks should be closed before that time I will mail them to chairmen of the various districts."

The House of Representatives has adopted all of Representative Phil Thompson's amendments relating to the internal revenue customs collection districts. The election for one trustee should be held in every school district in the county on next Saturday from nine o'clock a. m., to five o'clock p. m. If the banks should be closed before that time I will mail them to chairmen of the various districts."

The annual meeting of the Confederate Survivors' Association took place on Saturday. An eloquent address reviewing the work of the society during the past year was delivered by Mr. A. T. Cox. The address, together with the full proceedings of the meeting, will appear in this paper to-morrow.

FERNAND WARD refuses to aid in the work of white-washing his late business partners. He says "The responsibility of General Grant and John D. Fish, in the firm of Grant & Ward, was the same as my own." Let no guilty man escape.

A Remarkable Tribute.

Sidney Ourchund, of Pittsburg, Pa., writes, I have used Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the lungs many years with the most gratifying results. The relieving influence of Hall's Balsam is wonderful.

The pain and rack of the body incidental to a tight cough, soon disappear by the use of a spoonful according to directions.

My wife frequently sends for Hall's Balsam instead of a physician, and health is speedily restored by its use.
